

Regents' Recap

The University of Alaska Board of Regents is the governing body responsible for the university policy and management through the president. Regents are appointed by the governor for eight-year terms, subject to legislative confirmation. A student regent is appointed for two years from candidates nominated on each campus. (Regents' term of office shown in parentheses.)

The board is seeking $352 million from the state treasury, which includes a $37 million increase in retirement obligations, primarily through the state-run Public Employees' Retirement System and Teachers' Retirement System. The budget request also includes $6.7 million toward priority programs identified by the state and industry as high-demand programs in areas such as health care, engineering, fisheries and other sectors, as well as $2 million toward student success initiatives.

The request also includes a $6 million investment in university research, which supplies 2,300 jobs in Alaska at an annual $80 million annual payroll, split roughly evenly between university employees and spin-off jobs in the private sector. Every $1 in state funds invested in UA research leverages $6-7 from other sources, such as federal
